LONDON LOOKS FOR FAILURE. No Expectation That Peace Conference

Will Reach an Agreement.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Aug. 12.-The latest public news here in regard to the peace conference says that according to Mr. Sato, the spokesman for the Japanese commission, ere are indications that Russia's reply to the Japanese terms will be of such a nature that negotiations can continue. Nevertheless, in no circles here can there be found any expectation of peace resulting from conference.

There is one item in Japan's demands as reported which in diplomatio circles here is considered even more fatal to the prospects of Russia accepting the Japanese erms than the inclusion of an indemnity or the cession of Sakhalin. This is the provision limiting Russia's naval power in the Far East. If this is one of the terms, and if Japan refuses to make a modification, it alone, in the opinion of high functionaries in London, will suffice to render the conference abortive, for it would amount to a limitation of Russia's sovereignty, and to this she would never consent. But the attitude of Russia toward peace has been so fully discussed by THE SUN'S St. Peters burg correspondent that there is no need to dwell on it further.

HOTEL GUESTS DIVIDE ON RESULT OF THE CONFERENCE.

Between Arguments They Slap the New Hampshire Mosquite, Who Works Quietly-Sato's Dramatic Announcement of the Receipt of Russia's Answer

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 12.-This has been a dull day about the Hotel Wentworth. It has rained to begin with; the envoys and their suites have been at the navy yard all day, and the uncertainty is getting on the nerves of attachés, correspondents and even guests. The hotel people have caught the infection now. Girls, matrons and nice old gentlemen who will tell you that they have been coming to the hotel for twenty years are debating on the chance for peace, on Sakhalin, on indemnity. They ask you at the table for the latest news from the navy yard and whether Mr. Witte will pay for the war.

Peace or no peace—the debate is on all over the corridors. Every man, woman and child above the knee is on one side or the other. The war party points to the quick exchange of propositions which seems to indicate "No," to the despatches from St. Petersburg, to the few pessimistic words which Sato dropped in the morning. The war party is in the majority. The peace side says that no bargain ever opened with an offer of genuine terms. They ask what Mr. Witte came all this way for if he is going to call it off in the first week.

The debate has raged hot and heavy between the Japanese and Russian correspondents on the front stoop. They have held an unofficial imitation conference all day. The Japanese and Russian correspondents have mixed from the first with genuine good feeling. By tacit consent they limit their debate to the prospect of peace, cutting the war and its causes.

"We will not be here next Saturday. We will be gone by Wednesday," said a Rus-

Jap, with spirit. And then they are off. Sakhalin Island, the Lisotung Peninsula, indemnity-these words fly thick and fast in Russian basso and Jap tenor. It ends always with the Japanese declaring that peace will be declared and the Russians rooting forwar. Matsumoto, the Japanese parliamentarian, walked into one of these arguments and declared his own opinion. He said: "Just at the moment when it seems as though negotiations must be broken off they will go on, and by Russian initiative. From the beginning the Japanese have known that the Russian answer to the Japanese terms would be the threat to break off negotiations. But they'll never carry out their threat. Mark my words, there will be peace.

THE ENVOY'S BUSY DAY

There was scarcely a glimpse of the official parties to-day. The envoys got away at 9 o'clock for the navy yard. The regular crowd watched Takahira and Komura take their carriage at the front entrance. Takahira, who never "puts on dog" when he can help it, was dressed in a plain business suit and a Panama hat. Komura wore a frock coat and a light soft hat.

Their automobile carried the Russians away a few minutes later. Just after noon the Japanese auto returned, and out jumped Sato. He was surrounded like the man with the ball in a football game.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen, a little room," he said, and made his way to the back piazza. Standing on a chair he announced that he was the bearer of a message from both sides. It looked like a break; the Wentworth held its breath. With the deliberaa paper and read a statement to the effect that the Russian terms had been received by their excellencies, the Japanese, and that the Japanese would return their answer to-day at 30' clock or to-morrow at 3 o' clock. The whole Wentworth, which had hung breathless on his words, gave a groan of disappointment. Mr. Sato stopped to shake hands at the door with Miss Pilsen, his partner in the "Going to Jerusalem" game last night, and went back to the conference. There was just a glimpse of Karaskovitz at lunch time. His auto scorched up. He jumped out, ran for a paper, and was off again. He brought news, however, that the meeting would go on to-morrow and since then the Wentworth has done little but hold debates and slap mosquitoes

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE MOSQUITO. Surely this New Hampshire mosquito deserves scientific study. He is neither large and birdlike in his movements, like the Jersey mosquito, nor yet graceful, agile or noisy, like the Long Island stinger. He is a direct, voiceless, hand stinging mosquito. He doesn't talk about it. He approaches you with the business-like directness of a Japanese envoy, quietly gets his drill in place and lets you have it. If they are thick at the navy yard these negotiations will go through fast.

While the envoys labored at the navy yard the underlings of the Japanese party were having a trouble of their own. They sent to Portsmouth early in the week for a safe to hold papers of state. A small safe was hired from a local store and placed in the Oriental headquarters, and, with the state papers inside, looked up. This morning some of the secretaries tried to open it and failed. They had forgotten the combination. An auto was despatched to Portsmouth and the safe's owner was brought back with the combination. The Japanese, who had been afraid that the papers might be demanded on this historic day, breathed freely again. Every time the official automobiles come scorching up the driveway there is a crisis at the Wentworth. At half past 7, while most of the guests were at dinner,

This may seem rather unusual, but he does not care for anything else after he has eaten his Grape-Nuts, which he uses with milk or cream, and then he is through with his meal. Even on Thanksgiving Day he refused turkey and all the good things that make up that great dinner, and ate his dish of Grape-Nuts and cream with the best results and none of the evils that the other foolish members of the family

Then came Sato with the statement that revived the hopes of the peace party, for the conference had not broken up. It had got down to the discussion of terms, and it was even going to meet again. The peace men who had backed their opinions with money offered to double their bets. All is optimism again.

HOTEL GALETY. Because of this possibly the hotel is gay again to-night. Visitors from Rye Beach and Portsmouth are here for the Saturday night dance and the ballroom is packed. The officers who came up with the Tenth Artillery Band, two smart ensigns from the Dolphin and a bunch of young fellows up from a hunt in riding clothes gave color and variety. Special Cable Despatch to TEE SUN. GENEVA, Aug. 12 .- Prof. Hein, the well known geologist and Alpine climber, at the Zurich meeting of the Swiss Alpine Club described the sensations he experienced in falling from a precipice in the Saentes Alps. He was not troubled in breathing and felt none of the paralyzing terror which often overwhelms men in the face of a sudden catastrophe.

He felt tranquil, but was endowed with musual mental activity. Varied thoughts and ideas flashed rapidly through his brain. A thousand long forgotten incidents of his past life came pleasantly to his memory. Then came the sound of soft and soothing music, and at that instant he knew that he had struck ground. He lost consciousness absolutely without pain or the slightest sensation of shook.

AMERICA, ENGLAND, FRANCE AND RUSSIA AS FRIENDS.

Editor of "Echo de Paris" Thinks That Grouping Would Form a Foundation for World Peace -Significance of French Fleet's Visit to England-King's Trip.

LONDON, Aug: 12.-The feature of the week here which has stood out prominently has been the visit of the French fleet. This has been a complete and undiluted success. It has been a veritable feast of friendship, with every mark of genuineness. The descriptions and comments of the French press show how deep an effect it has had on French public opinion. Pages of THE SUN could be filled with quotations showing this. Let one taken hap-hazard suffice. The Echo de Paris says:

"Now 90 per cent. of Frenchmen are as strongl. Anglophile as they were strongly Anglophobe four years ago. Frenchmen regard King Edward as a wise and fareeeing monarch and a gentleman friend. Great Britain's behavior in the first stage of the Moroccan controversy won France's friendship. She was loyal to the backbone, ready to back us, no matter what occurred We felt this deeply. Germany realized it

The editor of the same journal in an interview says: "I hope that France, now that she and Great Britain are real and lasting friends, may be able to convince England that it is to her interest also to cement the friendship of France's ally, Russia. The United States would make a fourth, and the friendship of these four nations would form a foundation for the peace of the world. While France and England are thus cementing their friendship there does not seem to be any relief from the uneasiness which is emanating from Berlin and permeates the whole of Europe. A week ago t seemed probable that King Edward and Emperor William would meet some time in the coming week. This is now definitely contradicted. As King Edward's movements on the Continent are always watched with such keen interest the following outline of his immediate movements may be interesting. His visit to Marienbad is, of course, entirely for rest and health. So far from meeting the Kaiser, he will cross Germany during the night, so even the usual receptions of the German authorities will be avoided. He will leave for Flushing on Monday and will take a special train direct to Ischl. He will visit Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who is spending a holiday there. The visit will be private, and was arranged on the shortest notice between the two courts, withou the intermediary of the English and Austrian foreign offices. No minister will be present. King Edward will spend one night in Ischl and then go to Marienbad. As stated a week ago, King Edward is determined to bring Germany into the peace line, but apparently he does not consider the time ripe for a personal interview. There is no disguising the fact that the British Foreign Office regards the Kaiser with no small suspicion, and relations between the two courts are also very strained, not to say anything stronger. An illustration of this appears in a long article discussing Anglo-German relations, written by the Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zuricher Zeitung, who says that some weeks ago, when a high English personage was leaving Berlin, it was expected that the Kaiser would request him to transmit his greetings to the English Court, but the Kaiser frigidly said: "Our relations with England are practically suspended." It would be wrong perhaps to accept this as the actual, literal truth, but those who know the conditions under which the Kaiser himself is concerned, cannot fail to appreciate the significance of this and much else that has appeared of late.

METROSTYLE PIANOLA or PIANOLA PIANO

MANY of the greatest masterpieces are so difficult that only one or two of the very foremost pianists can play them. Liszt's "At the Spring," Balakirew's "Islamey" and the arrangement by Rosenthal of Chopin's op. 64 No. I are instances.

Yet to the Pianola they are just as easy as the simplest folk song. And wonderful as this may seem, it is by no means the chief of the Pianola's claims on the attention of music-lovers. With the Metrostyle (which is found in no other instrument than the Pianola and Pianola Piano) you can play the rolls that Grieg, Moszkowski, Chaminade, etc., have marked, in the same manner, and at the same tempo as these artists rendered them.

Musical knowledge is not the essential thing in Pianola playing, but musical taste, and to a greater or less extent this is common to all.

THE PIANOLA PIANO. Keyboard playing and Pianole combined in a single instrum

The latest form of the Pianola is the Pianola Piano. This instrument has the outward appearance of a regular upright piano, but the Metrostyle Pianola has been built into it so cleverly that the change from hand playing to Pianola playing can be accomplished instantaneously. The plane itself in tone, action, etc., is of the highest grade known, and nothing is lost by reason of its union with the Pianola. Its cost is no greater than a plano of equal quality and a Metrostyle Pianola in separate cases. Your present plano will be accepted at fair valuation in exchange. Prices of the Pianola $250 and $300. Prices of the Pianola Piano $500 to $1,000. Both instruments purchasable on moderate monthly installments.

HOW TO LIVE TO BE 105.

Recipe by Vigorous Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt, Who Will Be There This Month.

Grandma Elizabeth Hunt, said to be the oldest woman on Long Island, is getting ready to celebrate her 106th birthday on Aug. 31, when she will take her first automobile ride. She is living with her granddaughter, Mrs. H. Wickes, at 407 Adelphi street, Brooklyn. The venerable woman intends to spend the day at Meriden, Conn. where many relatives live.

Mrs. Hunt is a native of Lancaster, Pa. In 1827 she went to Brooklyn, and lived there until 1858, when she was widowed. She then moved to Middletown, Conn., but later on she returned to Brooklyn, which has been her home since. A physician interested in Mrs. Hunt, as a specimen of longevity, recently declared that she was in perfect health. Her sight and hearing have been failing lately. Being asked once if she could account for her long life, she said she followed a few simple rules, namely, going to bed early and arising early; working hard, getting along without servants and doing her own housework. Speaking of diet she said:

"I have always eaten just what I liked. Nearly everything in the way of food is good provided you don't eat too much."

Here are her views on the servant girl

"If women would spend more time at "If women would spend more time at housework and devote less time to nonsense, they'd be better off. I worked hard until I was 9) years old. I never could abide servants. They cause more worry than they offset by the good they do."

Mrs. Hunt frequently goes out for a walk, and when out shopping with Mrs. Wickes she walks to the shopping district, nearly a mile from her home. She says women ride too much in trolley cars and ride too much in trolley cars and carriages, and that is one reason why doctors flourish.

NO EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID. Few Cases at Bath Beach and Bensonhurst

This Year, Property Owners Say. The talk of there being a good deal of typhoid fever in Bath Beach and Bensonhurst has stirred up the property owners of both places and they have held a meeting and declared that many of the published reports were false. The reports, they say, have hurt both places. Justice Cornelius Furgueson of Benson hurst sent a letter yesterday to Health Commissioner Darlington calling his atten-tion to the reports and asking him to make a full investigation to determine just how much truth they contain. Justice Furgueson much truth they contain. Justice Furgueson is one of the property owners' committee. There are ten members of this committee, including five physicians.

The physicians state that the number of typhoid fever cases in Bensonhurst this year is about the average number for many years past. The actual number in both Bensonhurst and Bath Beach this seaso since June 1 has been only twenty-two, the doctors say. This is not a large number, considering that both sections have a summer population of 12,000 to 15,000 people. The committee takes particular exception to an alleged interview with one of Dr. Darlington's assistants, who was quoted as saying that the residents of Bath Beach and

The committee takes particular exception to an alleged interview with one of Dr. Darlington's assistants, who was quoted as saying that the residents of Bath Beach and Bensonhurst were living as a whole as if they were in the country, using wells and failing to use sewers. This statement is absolutely false, the committee says.

Bath Beach and Bensonhurst are in the Thirtieth ward of Brooklyn, but comprise only about one-seventh of the ward. The boundaries of these two sections are as follows: Seventy-eventh street on the northeast, Twenty-fifth avenue on the northeast, Gravesend Bay on the southwest and Fourteenth avenue on the northwest. There have been forty-nine typhoid cases in the entire ward.

RAIDED PERSPIRING CROWD.

Cops Hustled Their Own Sleuth When They Broke Into Alleged Poolroom.

Over four hundred men were sweltering a a loft on the third floor of the business building at 52 Marion street yesterday afternoon when a squad of police, acting under the direction of Inspector Hogan smashed in the doors. The four hundred at once dropped the endeavor to keep cool and became active in attempts to escape. At every turn, however, they found themselves hemmed in, so they finally quieted down to await their fate about as un comfortable as any bunch of men could be. Some time ago the police suspected that a poolroom was in operation at this place, and Capt. Martens of the Mulberry street station posted men there to see that the law was not violated. Soon afterward an injunction was issued against the police restraining them from interfering with the

A few days ago, Patrolman William Mussmecker of the East Sixty-seventh street station was sent there by Inspector Hogan to get evidence. Mussmecker was admitted, it is alleged, and made bets on admitted, it is alleged, and made bets on the races. His report was put in the shape of an affidavit by Assistant District At-torney Corrigan, on the strength of which Magistrate Breen at the Centre street court up in the lift. He was promptly thrown into the street. Detective Berbenich took his place.

When the elevator load of cops got to the third floor, it was found that the door was locked on the inside. The cops had not the password, so the men inside refused to open it. Detective Minogue then smashed the door with an ax.

Meanwhile the men inside had tried to escape by the stairs and fire escapes, but found both well guarded by the police with drawn revolvers. When the police finally got inside and looked over the perspiring throng, they noticed that nearly every man in it was bareheaded and in his shirt sleeves. Later on they discovered the missing hats and coats all carefully checked and packed away in a compartment fitted for the purpose at the street end of the loft.

When the five men for whom the warrants were issued had been picked out of the mob by Mussmecker they were taken to the Mulberry street station and locked up, charged with keeping and maintaining a poolroom. They said they were Louis May of 272 Seventh street, James Collins of 344 Pleasant avenue, Henry B. Jackson of 716 East 171st street and Michael Mack of 198 Elm street.
